09:30 Morning: runners or chop, from the first three candles

At 09:30 a stock has only three 5-minute candles, too few for the other scans. This tab asks five quick questions of those three candles and tells you which stocks look like runners for the day.

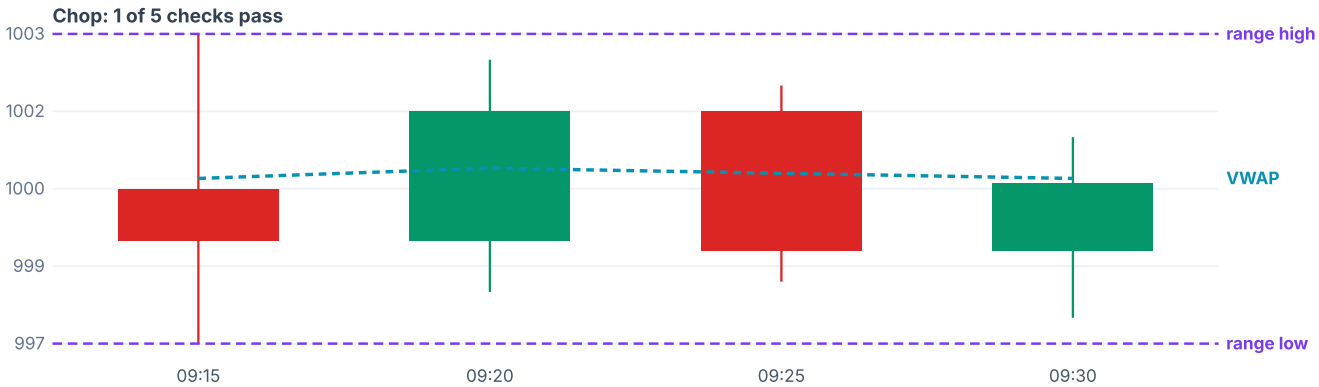

The idea

The first 15 minutes of the day are the market's opening battle. A stock that comes out of it above its opening range, on heavy volume, above the day's average price, with its averages already fanning out and green candles has every early sign of a trend day. A stock that fails most of these is in the "chop zone": wait for it.

1. The picture: a runner and a chopper at 09:30

Each candle closes above the dashed VWAP line, the 09:30 price is above the 09:15-09:30 high, two of three candles are green and the second and third close higher than the first.

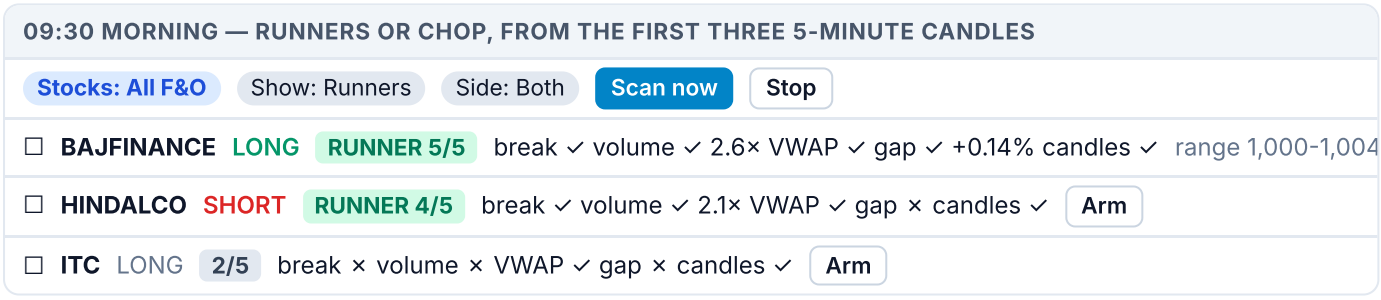

Candles cross the VWAP line both ways, the price is still inside the 09:15-09:30 range, colours alternate. Nothing to do yet.

2. The five checks, in plain words

CHECK	WHAT PASSES (FOR A LONG; A SHORT IS THE MIRROR)	WHY IT MATTERS
Break	The latest 1-minute price after 09:30 is above the high of 09:15-09:30 (the opening range).	A stock that has already left its opening range has buyers behind it.
Volume	Shares traded 09:15-09:30 are at least 1.8× the same 15 minutes on the last ten sessions (needs at least two earlier sessions).	A move on unusual volume is one many traders are joining.
VWAP	Each candle closes above the day's average price (VWAP); the 09:20 and 09:25 candles also open above it and no 1-minute dip in them touches it.	Price staying above the average price means the buyers are winning the morning.
SMA gap	On 5-minute candles the fast average is at least 0.10 % above the slow one on the last closed candle.	The averages have started to fan out: the trend has a shape, not just a jump.
Candles	At least two of the three are green, and the 09:25 candle closes above the 09:15 close and above the fast average.	Follow-through: the move continued after the first burst.

4 or more of 5 = a runner (the row says RUNNER). Each stock is judged for a long and for a short; the side with more passes is shown. Before 09:30 a row says waiting.

3. How to use it, step by step

1. Open the tab at 09:30 (a minute or two after is fine). Earlier, every row only says waiting.
2. Pick the stock lists and press Scan now. The first scan of the day downloads 15 days of candles per stock to learn its usual opening volume, so it takes a few minutes; later scans are quick.
3. Set Show to Runners. Read the top rows: 5/5 first, then 4/5. The ✓ / × marks tell you which checks passed.
4. Tick the two or three you like and Arm ticked on a practice bot. The bot trades them on its own signal; with "Join the morning trend" on in its Settings it can enter a trend that is already running.
5. Come back at 10:00 with Trend quality: a 09:30 runner that has gone choppy by 10:00 should be unarmed.

4. A worked example

BAJFINANCE at 09:31: opening range ₹1,000 to ₹1,004; the 09:30 price is ₹1,008.40 (break ✓). Shares traded 09:15-09:30: 2.6 lakh against a usual 1.0 lakh (volume ✓, 2.6×). All three candles closed above VWAP and the second and third opened above it (VWAP ✓). Fast average ₹1,005.9, slow ₹1,004.4: gap +0.15 % (gap ✓). Two green candles, the 09:25 close above the 09:15 close (candles ✓). 5 of 5: RUNNER, LONG.

What it means for you: the stock has every early sign of a trend day. Arm it; the bot buys on its own signal and the stop guards the trade. What it does not mean: that it will keep rising. The Morning test tab measures, on past days, how often a morning like this really did keep going.

5. Benefits and limits

Why it helps

- A disciplined 09:30 routine instead of chasing whatever jumped at 09:16.
- Five checks a beginner can read as ticks and crosses.
- Volume vs usual uses the stock's own history, so a quiet stock on a loud day still stands out.

Limits

- Three candles are a thin base: a 5/5 runner can still reverse at 10:00.
- Needs at least two earlier sessions of candles for the volume check.
- It never places an order.

6. Words used here

Opening range
The high and low of 09:15 to 09:30. Above the high = breakout up, below the low = breakout down.

Volume vs usual
Shares traded in these 15 minutes compared with the same 15 minutes on earlier days. Example: 2.6× = two and a half times the usual.

VWAP
The average price everyone paid today so far, weighted by volume. Above it: buyers are winning.

SMA gap
Distance between the fast and slow average lines as % of the price.

Runner
A stock that passes 4 or 5 of the five checks.

Arm
Put the stock on a bot's Trade list; the bot trades only on its own signal.

Practice money and candles only: nothing on the Scalp page places an order. The bots trade only the stocks you arm, in PAPER (practice) mode unless you switch one to LIVE yourself.
